

Living Our Values

Link to Learning Outcomes 1.3, 1.11, 3.1, 3.9

Living Our Values

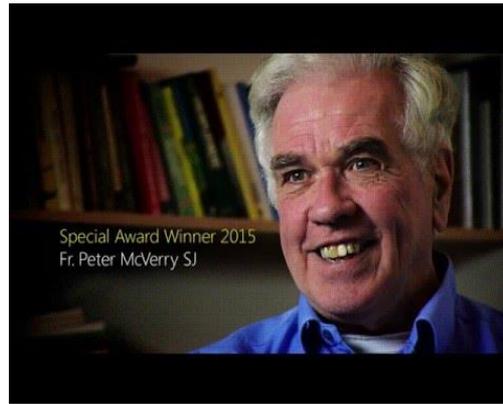

- You have 15 minutes to read and reflect on the positive contribution made by the following five people.
- The guiding questions will help you to consider the values that are lived out in each person's work.
- You will then choose one person to speak about in a breakout room discussion.
- You will share with the group why you admire this person and describe how this person's values are lived out in the work they do.

Fr. Peter McVerry

"In a community that loves one another, there should be no-one poor, (unless all are poor); there should be no-one homeless, no-one lonely, no-one sick or alone without visitors, no-one in prison who has been abandoned and written off, there should be no-one rejected or marginalised."

<https://pmvtrust.ie/about-us/fr-peter-mcverry/>

Oide

1. What important work does this person do?
2. What values does this person demonstrate in their work?
3. How could this person be an inspiration to you or others?

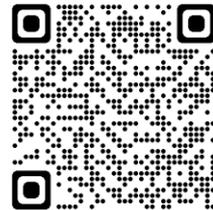

Lorraine O'Connor

Oide

1. What important work does this person do?
2. What values does this person demonstrate in their work?
3. How could this person be an inspiration to you or others?

“We’ve all faced so many obstacles. It’s only in the past three years that it really feels like a game changer in Irish society. We’ve seen a lot more acceptance. That’s the sheer determination of the women and the love they have for the work they do. It’s their determination to make people accept them for who they are. What we do is a gesture of goodwill but it’s also letting people know we’re Muslim and we’re just like you.”

<https://msoe.ie/index.php/about-msoe>

Tomi Reichental

Oide

“When speaking in the Holocaust time, we said ‘never again’. And now it’s happening again – Rwanda, Srebrenica... This is a story of now, appropriate for this time. The idea is to bring up to date the genocide in Europe and anti-Semitism after the war and lots of things that are still kept quiet”

<https://www.holocausteducationireland.org/tomi-reichental>

1. What important work does this person do?
2. What values does this person demonstrate in their work?
3. How could this person be an inspiration to you or others?

Mary Robinson

1. What important work does this person do?
2. What values does this person demonstrate in their work?
3. How could this person be an inspiration to you or others?

“Human rights are inscribed in the hearts of people; they were there long before lawmakers drafted their first proclamation.”

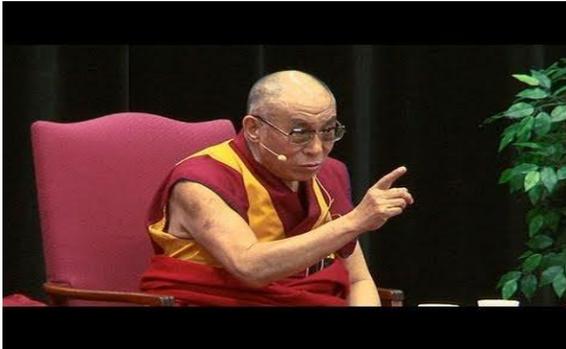

<https://theelders.org/profile/mary-robinson>

Dalai Lama

Oide

“Harmony among our different religious traditions is essential for world peace. Genuine harmony should be founded on mutual respect. And respect should be based on a recognition that all the world's major religious traditions are similar in having the potential to help human beings live at peace with themselves, with each other and with the environment.”

<https://www.dalailama.com/>

1. What important work does this person do?
2. What values does this person demonstrate in their work?
3. How could this person be an inspiration to you or others?